Spain Returns to Church; Property of King Is Seized

Feast of Ascension Thursday Restores Peace to Republic

REPRISAL ON KING

Government to Hold His Estates Pending Probe of Rioting

MADRID, Spain.—(AP)—Catholic Spain went back to church Thursday after mad rioting for the last four days in which church buildings in many of the big cities were laid waste by fire.

This is the Feast of the Ascension, one of the most important in the church calendar, and is a national holiday.

The banks are closed and industry is suspended, while the churches are thronged and the priests are performing their services.

Archbishop Flees

Cardinal Segura, archbishop of Toledo, has fled to France on his way to Rome, and the charred ruins of many churches are being guarded by republican soldiers as precaution against further looting.

The anti-Catholic disorders apparently have ended.

The new republican government of Spain has decreed the seizure of all property owned by the former king, Alfonso XIII, pending an investigation of alleged participation by royalists in the recent rioting and arson committed in Madrid and many other leading cities of the nation. The government, first blamed Communists for the trouble, and then declared that Alfonso's party was secretly aiding them.

The former king, in his first public utterance from exile in France, declared none of his friends and supporters would lift a hand against the new republic, but would trust to the will of the people at future elections to bring the monarch back to his throne. Following the king's statement, the high Catholic authorities also pledged support to the defacto government, notwithstanding which the riots continued through Wednesday.

Cabinet Orders Investigation

The cabinet decree confiscating Alfonso's property ordered an investigation of all of his acts since the beginning of the Primo de Rivera dictatorship in 1923. It charged that Alfonso had not been legitimately king since that time. It charged Alfonso with using the royal palace to increase his personal fortune and declared that a search of the palace revealed documents to prove this. All Spanish banks and bankers were ordered to turn over Alfonso's property immediately to the minister of finance. The bank of Spain was given charge of the royal possessions. Foreign diplomatic and consular officials were ordered to check the king's investments abroad and a committee of financial experts was ordered to investigate his investments in Spain.

An investigation also was ordered into activities of the cabinet under Primo de Rivera and Gen. Damazo Berenguer, to determine if ground for prosecution exists. Indictments were returned against the monarchist leaders who were detained following Sunday's riots.

The investigation to determine whether Alfonso might be prosecuted on a charge of inspiring what the government maintained was a monarchist plot will begin immediately, the attorney-general announced.

Cat Causes Court Suit

PARIS.—(AP)—A Siamese cat has caused a law suit in Paris between Mme. Bloch and Mme. Drouard, the cat's owner. Both women had been down on the Riviera and Mme. Drouard was returning by motor and Mme. Bloch by rail. The cat, Ayuthia, by name, is not a motor cat, but last night it came to the door of Mme. Bloch. When the owner reached Paris by motor and went to claim her domestic pet, she found that Ayuthia's basket contained nothing but an ordinary tabby cat. Mme. Bloch insists that someone must have made the substitution when she left her compartment at Toulon.

Bishop Who Fled Spain

Here is Cardinal Primate Segura, archbishop of Toledo, who fled to France Tuesday night following the anti-church demonstrations which burned Catholic buildings in Spain. Segura, in a recent pastoral letter, advised Catholics to refuse to co-operate with the new Republican government, although from other quarters high Catholics were suggesting a conciliatory policy.

The Education association emphasized one of its plans, which would provide for equalizing the schools on a nine-month term basis, using the county unit system, with state aid for all districts.

Doumer Becomes French President

Eriand's Withdrawal in Favor of Socialists Fails to Stop Him

VERSAILLES, France.—(AP)—The 13th president of France is Paul Doumer, who led Aristide Briand on the first ballot, and was declared elected on the second, late Wednesday night.

Doumer only lacked 10 votes of having the necessary majority of two-thirds of the parliament, on the first ballot. He polled 442 votes, against a necessary 452.

Briand, many-times premier and now foreign minister, who was the pre-election favorite, withdrew when the first ballot yielded him only 401 votes, and threw his support to Senator Pierre Marraud, Socialist candidate. Enough of the other candidates, however, went over to Doumer to assure his election.

Doumer is the white-bearded president of the French senate, and now becomes chief executive of the nation. On the second and last ballot he defeated Senator Marraud and the combined strength of the Socialists by 504 votes to 334.

Premier Pierre Laval gave Doumer official notice of his election. The 71-year-old president-elect responded briefly with praise for Briand's foreign policies and expressed hope they would be continued.

It was not so certain, however, that Briand, eleven times premier and for the past seven years foreign minister, would remain in the cabinet.

He told his colleagues he would go to Geneva Thursday for the League of Nations Council meeting as he had planned, but whether he goes is a matter for cabinet position.

Briand's defeat on the first ballot had been unexpected by most of the political experts who had predicted that the overwhelming vote by which the chamber sustained his foreign policy last night would be repeated in the second ballot election.

He told the electors considered the cabinet and the election had immediately the cabinet.

The brief inauguration ceremony in which Doumer's reference to Briand's policies was observed, ended as the president-elect and Premier Laval left together to call on President Doumergue.

Mingled cheers for Doumer and Briand came from the throng outside the palace.

Although they have no direct vote in the election of their president, thousands of French citizens came here from Paris in the morning.

Dipping Program In Hempstead Is Given U. S. Praise

Dr. W. M. MacKellar of Washington, D. C., Inspects Co. Thursday

STATE CLEAR IN 1932

Hope District of 7 Counties to Be Finished This Fall

Tick eradication work in Hempstead county was being inspected Thursday by three officials of the United States Department of Agriculture, and pronounced the most satisfactory of any part of the eradication program in Arkansas.

Heading the visitors was Dr. W. M. MacKellar, assistant chief of the tick eradication division of the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. Dr. MacKellar said:

"Hempstead and Nevada counties are coming on splendidly, and the federal department wishes to express thanks for the friendly co-operation of livestock owners in the dipping program. We are completing the campaign in seven counties this year, will tackle the remaining eight next year, and by the close of 1932 we expect to have Arkansas wholly tick-free."

Accompanying Dr. MacKellar are: Dr. W. A. McDonald, inspector in charge for Arkansas, with headquarters at Little Rock; Dr. A. W. Rice, field man for the southwestern district of Arkansas, with offices at Texarkana; and H. B. Aldridge, in charge of the dipping in Hempstead county.

Armory Site Body Named By Council; Report Back 19th

Gosnell, Lewis, Halliburton, to Look Over Locations

COUNCIL ENDORSES

City Government Favors Acceptance of $25,000 State Building

The Hope city council endorsed the new armory project at a special meeting called Wednesday night by Mayor John Vesey, and appointed three aldermen on a committee to select two or more sites and obtain options for purchase by the city.

The committee are: R. L. Gosnell, W. A. Lewis and Ira Halliburton.

They will meet with representatives of the civic groups who also have endorsed the armory project, and will seek out several of the most likely-looking sites for an armory building.

The committee is to report back to the next regular meeting of the city council, Tuesday, May 19, when final action is expected.

It was the unanimous opinion of the council at its special meeting Wednesday that the state's offer to build a $25,000 National Guard armory here providing the city furnished the ground, should be accepted.

Locations and prices are expected to be listed at the council meeting next Tuesday. The site committee will have whatever assistance is required from the American Legion, Rotary, Kiwanis, Business & Professional Women's clubs, Legion Auxiliary and the local unit of the National Guard, all of which organizations have volunteered their aid, in petitions which led Mayor Vesey to issue the special session call for Wednesday night.

"Agri" School on Tour of Counties

Movable Exhibit of Farm Work Is Shown to Negroes Here

The Movable Agricultural School for Negro Farm Folks on its second-quarter tour over the state is completed a two-day visit with the negro farmers in this county Thursday. The school made its first setup in Hempstead county at Lincoln Public school, Washington, Wednesday. The school is under the direction of S. J. Phillips, agent for men, and Jennie L. Woodard, agent for women.

Its final session in Hempstead county is being held at Powers Thursday. Nevada county points will be toured Friday and Saturday.

The program of the school in the Washington settlement was as follows: Men and boys. 1. Stands crops. 2. Soil moisture. 3. Cultivation. 4. Feeding livestock. 5. Control of insects. 6. Fertilizing crops. 7. General outlook. Women and girls. 1. Canning fruit and vegetables. 2. Making breads. 3. Feeding baby chicks. 4. Preserving eggs. 5. Culling poultry.

The sole purpose of the movable demonstration school in this visit is to help the farmers to "keep the dinner bell ringing." The dinner bell tapped very lightly among farmers throughout Arkansas the latter part of 1930 and the beginning of 1931. There are telling evidences in such a large and better garden.

In the Washington community Belle S. Tyus has preserved 35 dozens of eggs in waterglass. Many of the negro farms visited yesterday by S. J. Phillips, were notable for their neat plots, potato patches, small acreage of tomatoes, watermelons and cantaloupe patches.

Would Waive Rights

"I have been informed unofficially that the committee found it did not have any legal right to examine witnesses under oath, etc. I am willing to go on record as waiving any legal rights, mine or the members of this department, in connection with any examination or investigation the Audit Committee or its auditors may desire to make."

"It is not my disposition to criticize the members of this committee, because they are all high class gentlemen and are doing their duty as they see fit, but since the Highway Department and I are the subject of severe criticism because no audit ever has been made, other than that made by state agencies, I wish to go on record publicly as requesting that in some manner, a fair and impartial audit of

Audit Commission Tells Why There Will Be No Audit

Dwight Blackwood Claims Department Still Wants Audit Made

PROBE IS RESTRICTED

Audit Body Finds No Provision for Checking Payroll or Engineering

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Governor Parnell said Thursday noon he would insist that the Highway Audit Commission "carry out the terms and purposes" of the highway audit act of 1931.

Commenting upon the decision of the commission in abandoning its work on the ground that it lacked sufficient authority, the governor asserted the act gave the commission full power to make a comprehensive and thorough audit of the highway department.

He said his interpretation of the act gave the commission $100,000 to spend in any way it deemed advisable in conducting an audit.

"The intent of the legislature, in its opinion," he said, was to clothe the commission with all authority necessary to determine whether there has been any wrong-doing in the highway department.

Opposite Opinions

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—1931 attempt to audit the State Highway Department has failed, just as it failed in 1929 and 1930.

In 1930 the failure was checked up to a fault in the auditing law of 1929, and the same verdict was reached Wednesday by the Highway Audit Commission with respect to the new auditing law of 1931.

Although the Highway Audit Commission declared it was prohibited from hiring an auditor, making pavement tests, or otherwise doing more than merely verifying the book accounts of the department, Chairman Dwight H. Blackwood of the State Highway Commission still insisted that the department wanted an audit.

When the Audit Commission, through its chairman, J. M. Futrell, informed Governor Parnell Wednesday afternoon that it could not proceed with its audit plans, statements began to fly thick and fast. A detailed announcement was made by Highway Commissioner Blackwood declaring he wanted an audit, and an equally detailed statement came from the Audit Commission setting forth the obstacles in the law which the administration created by the legislature this year. These statements appearing Thursday morning's newspaper.

Blackwood's Statement

Mr. Blackwood's statement follows: "I was very much disappointed on being informed that the commission created by the legislature for the purpose of making an audit of the Highway Department could not find the means to carry on this work."

"I earnestly hope that this committee will reconsider, and endeavor to work out some feasible plan whereby an unbiased audit can be made of the activities of the Highway Department since I came into office."

"It is needless to state here that the question of a highway audit has been a political issue in the last two campaigns, and the records will bear me out that I made written requests to the legislatures of 1929 and 1931 to provide in some manner for an audit of the Highway Department, which would forever put at rest the unfair charges which have been made in political campaigns."

"I have been informed unofficially that the committee found it did not have any legal right to examine witnesses under oath, etc. I am willing to go on record as waiving any legal rights, mine or the members of this department, in connection with any examination or investigation the Audit Committee or its auditors may desire to make."

Generosity in Dollars

WHEN a generous gesture is made with dollars, instead of words, it deserves to be listed with noble impulses. There are entirely too many cases of sticky sentimentalism for which laurel wreaths are plaited and press notices are given. But when you get a green-back version of unselfishness it is fairly reliable.

Last year a bank in Vineland, N. J., failed. School children lost $37,000. The money which they had earned in mowing lawns and shoveling and wiping dishes vanished. The round silver dollars that were special birthday gifts, and the quarters that had been saved when they wanted to see a movie and didn't were completely gone.

Colonel Evan O. Kimble, the head of another financial institution in the same city, knew what the reaction of those youngsters would be. They would decide that you couldn't trust savings accounts. They would buy caramels and gumdrops and go to movies and ball games whenever they had any money. They would come to the decision that the wisest thing to do is to spend your money before something happens to it.

Colonel Kimble realized that boys and girls who held this attitude couldn't train for the best citizenship. Therefore, from the coffers of his own bank, he dragged out the money bags and restored to each child the sum that he had lost.

Certainly the children who had preferred another bank to his didn't expect such largesse. But they are going to remember it. They are going to realize that fair play and generosity still make up a big part in life, or else a benefactor would not have made such a gift.

There are those who will say that the bank acted as a benefactor because it is counting on the profits which will accrue from the new accounts that will be opened. But such accounts will be small, at best. It will be a long time until the boys and girls will be making noticeable sums of money. The money which the bank could have loaned would have done more for it financially than the new accounts can do.

Colonel Kimble is representative of the type of business men who are putting a conscience in their work. He realized that it is just as important to teach future citizens that the financial backing with which they deal is secure as it is to encourage them to send their coin to India's starving millions.

Colonel Kimble made a solid contribution to citizenship. He deserves to be mentioned.

Going Off Half-Cocked

THE Hot Springs Sentinel Record was not well informed when it undertook to point to Arkansas Polytechnic College as a "horrible example" of prolific waste at a time when "there isn't enough money available in Arkansas to carry on the education work." The Hot Springs paper is all wrought up over the annual Agri Day—"a big celebration, with a parade . . . a king and a queen crowned . . . a rodeo and a baseball game, and a banquet and a theater party . . . a prize and a loving cup for the best float in the parade." Such waste and foolish extravagance.

"The schools of Arkansas can't be suffering very much," continues the Sentinel Record, "when schools are in so strong for celebrations, for parties, for entertainments, for athletics, for anything else than hard study."

Too bad that the Hot Springs editor selected this particular one as his "horrible example." Agri Day at Arkansas Tech is purely an educational event, the object of which is to stimulate interest in the agricultural, horticultural, livestock and home economics departments, both among the students and the public. It is decidedly a worth-while and commendable occasion.

An as to the expense: It cost the college the total sum of $8.00, not for the one event, but for a loving cup which will be passed on from one winner to the next year after year until some person or unit has won it three years in succession, when it will be charged off as a net loss to the college and another cup will be bought.

All the handsome floats about which the Sentinel Record is concerned were furnished by the firms and individuals they represented. The winning horticultural and agricultural department floats were decorated with products of the college farm. The queen and others in the parade furnish their own costumes, "eats" at the banquet were prepared and served by students in the home economics classes and each person served paid for his own plate. There was no doubt a profit in the banquet, either for the school or the home economics class. And the theatre party. We were about to overlook that whoopee. It consisted of educational pictures shown in the Armory by the educational department of the National Forestry Department. Headquarters of the Ozark National Forest are in Russellville and the forestry department is glad of such an opportunity to show its educational films before an audience of students and representative citizens in the forest area.

Perhaps the Sentinel Record writer was short of editorial material for the day and saw in the Agri Day story a subject for philosophizing. Had he been better informed he might have used the occasion as an object lesson in how to stage an entertaining, instructive, educational celebration with little or no expense.—Russellville Courier-Democrat.

Painful Piles

Go Quick—No Cutting—No Salves
It takes only one bottle of Dr. J. S. Leonard's prescription—HEM-ROID—to end itching, bleeding, protruding piles. This internal remedy acts quickly even in old, stubborn cases. HEM-ROID succeeds because it heals and restores the affected parts and removes blood congestion in the lower bowel—the cause of piles. Only an internal medicine can do this, that's why salves and cutting fail. Ward & Son say HEM-ROID Tablets must end your Pile misery or money back.—Adv.

Mr. Car Owner! YOU BE THE JUDGE

READ the comparison of construction and prices outlined below and judge for yourself. Why should anyone take chances with special brand tires of unknown manufacture when you can buy Firestone quality tires at no extra cost?

We save you money and serve you better because of Firestone's direct buying of rubber and cotton—undivided interest in building tires—owning their own factories, the most efficient in the world—and their great economical distributing and standardized service system.

Come in today—we will give you more value for your dollar.

These cadets of the United States Military Academy at West Point placed a literal interpretation of the orders to "man the guns" when they visited the Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Maryland. The "future generals" were treated to a demonstration of the army's biggest weapons, including the 16-inch gun upon which they are standing. Cadets are shown poking their heads through holes in armor plate made by 16-inch shells like that photographed to scale at the left.

The Ol' Kunnel

BACK in 1875 a kid 14 years old got a thrill he remembers to this day. The kid was Colonel Matt J. Winn and the thrill was the first Kentucky Derby ever run. He saw Aristides take the lead at the barrier's click, force the fierce pace all the way, shake off every challenger and thunder under the wire a winner. His boyish voice joined in the cheer that went up from the little local crowd—and all that was 56 years ago.

Through all the years since the 14-year-old Matt Winn sat in his dad's grocery wagon and saw born on the turf, a racing tradition that was to become dear to an American sports-loving public, the Derby has been the race closest to the ol' kunnel's heart. When the blue-bloods line up at Churchill Downs this May 16, Colonel Matt Winn will be there to see his 57th Derby. And when they come tearing down the home stretch, the voice of a 70-year-old man will help to swell the cheer that thousands of watchers send up in tribute. Great old fellow, that Kunnel Winn—I hope he has a winning ticket.

First Class Fighting Man

THE Kunnel has a round, affable face, with an Irish-tilted nose and a twinkling Irish eye. But he is a fighting man with a fighting heart. A battler! A man who can come from behind. He has come just that. Around 1909 racing was in an unhealthy condition in this country. Almost single-handed he fought the Western Jockey Club, a group that dominated racing in the west to the point of utter monopoly. In the end he won the appointment of a racing commission in Kentucky, forced the Jockey Club to capitulate and, in 1907, merged the western club with his own organization into the Louisville Racing Association. When the New York Jockey Club, led by August Belmont, refused to admit James Butler and his Empire City track into the sunlight of competition, Butler called on Winn. Old the Kunnel beat Belmont? Well, eight months after Butler asked Winn's help, a running-horse meeting at Empire City—with Jockey Club approval—was definitely announced. A turf war threatened in New Orleans. The Kunnel stepped in there and in no time at all the owners of two tracks were not only running their meetings harmoniously, but were patronizing one another's tracks.

Dark Days

THINGS looked dark for racing in 1911. Governor Hughes chased the horses from New York. Illinois took a similar action. The gates of the finest racing plants in the country were being closed by disapproval. Even in Kentucky the sport was threatened. Colonel Winn rallied his friends, moved into war-torn Mexico and carried on at Juarez so that the sport might not be lost to America. He saved racing from what looked like sure death. Financially Juarez was a flop—but the money lost there helped the sick patient, horse-racing, back to its feet.

Kentucky put through a bill in 1912 banning the bookmaker. The Kunnel found some second-hand pari-mutuel machines in a Louisville pawnshop, installed them at Churchill Downs and raced—under an ancient charter that legalized mutual wagering. Later he has had a political battle on his hands in Kentucky, but at stated periods when the ballots are counted, the ol' kunnel is always first under the wire. During the time when Winn was battling to elect a governor of Kentucky who would be friendly to racing, Illinois invited him to take his stand there. He bought 700 acres 40 miles from Chicago and built Lincoln Fields, a racing establishment without peer in the world today.

No wonder the Kunnel likes the Derby. He has fought for the horses that run there.
